The announcement that a fund had been contributed by charlable people for furnishing wood for families actually in need of it brought urgent applications this morning from between two and three hundred persons, more than enough to swamp the fund. There has really been great suffering among the poor during this cold spell, notwithstanding all efforts to relieve it.

Heavy lee in the Rivers.

On account of the heavy loc in the James River and the danger of damage it to the wharves, many of which are weak, the Old Dominion Company has withdawn its day steamer for the present. The night stammers are still running, but find the loc very tick between City Point and Richmond; also at Fort Powhatan, and Weyanoke, and between Jamestown and Hog Island, where it is gorged. The Appomattox is solidly frozen over.
